WELCOME to the third edition of PRO STATE of the art

Recently, the world has had to deal with the COVID-19 pandemic, which has shocked our lives and relations. In this period, oncologists have maintained their commitment to supporting cancer patients in fighting their disease while being protected against SARS-CoV2 infection. Meanwhile, the therapeutic landscape of advanced prostate cancer has dramatically changed.

Robust evidence now supports the anticipated use of consolidated strategies, which used to be administered at a later stage of the disease. Furthermore, intensified strategies derived by combining agents with different mechanisms of action.

Moreover, for the first time, personalized therapies offer the possibility to tailor our strategy. Finally, the massive introduction of next generation imaging techniques in the real world is increasing the gap between the population enrolled into the clinical trials and the patients we assess in our clinics.

This evidence supports a dramatic change in our vision of the disease, which is increasingly becoming a continuum, without any artificial separation of various stages of the disease.

“Pro.State of the Art” meeting returns in its third edition to give the opportunity to meet again in person with Italian clinicians involved in the treatment of prostate cancer to discuss this new therapeutic landscape with distinguished experts from Europe and Italy.
